

Everflow Opens New Distribution Center in Texas

Forged by a strong family tradition of integrity and quality manufactured products, Everflow continues to expand its footprint in the plumbing industry. Everflow Supplies, Inc., a leading supplier of PVF and specialty plumbing products, announced the opening of its newest distribution center, dedicated to supporting its valued customers in the South and West regions. The state-of-the-art facility is located outside Dallas in Arlington, Texas and will stock a complete line of PVF and plumbing specialty products; including copper press fittings, malleable fittings, PEX tubing and fittings, brass fittings and more. The new 280,000-square-foot facility is the third distribution center in North America for Everflow, which operates out of its headquarters in Carteret, New Jersey. The second distribution center, which opened last year in Chicago, serves to improve support and product accessibility to its customers in the Midwest.

"This warehouse greatly enhances our ability to provide our customers with the products they want, when they want them," said

Peter Gobis III, director of sales & marketing for Everflow. "Everflow has a strong name among wholesalers, builders and plumbing contractors, and this new distribution center displays our commitment to improving our already stellar customer service. We will continue to invest in infrastructure and product offerings to maximize our capability to perform as a leading supplier of PVF and specialty products for our valued customers nationwide." The new warehouse will allow the company to better service its existing and new customers, by providing shorter shipping times, increased inventory and product availability, and reduced ordering and shipping costs. This facility will also offer a "Will Call" program for customers in the local Dallas/Fort Worth area.

Customer service and fulfillment have built Everflow into one of the largest independently branded sourcing company for valves, fittings & nipples, faucets & plumbing specialties for the plumbing & heating, industrial, waterworks, fire protection and irrigation markets. Its broad but complementary product offerings allow for residential, commercial and industrial applications be serviced with assurance, as a result of their commitment to quality and customer service. Everflow sets itself apart by positioning the right inventory at the right location, along with offering wholesale customers next day shipping, which helps to serve its customers' requirements. The capability to provide quality products and value-added services quickly, along with the ability to price competitively, are the qualities Everflow customers have come to expect.

In speaking with Everflow's President, David Templer, stated "I'm excited to see the continued growth of our company and ability to sustain the level of service provided to our customers during this growth. We are constantly seeking out new products to add to our offering for our customers. We also are utilizing new technologies to improve our warehouse logistics."

Through the execution of a standard of excellence company-wide, Everflow continually evolves in how they conduct themselves in all aspects of the business. They continually strive to be the industry leader in customer service and the supplier of PVF and specialty plumbing products.
